Back in late 2008, Freetail Brewing Co. first opened its doors on a little hill beside a windmill in North San Antonio. But its history stretches back further to New Year's Eve, 2005. While on a ski trip with friends and winding the evening down in a local brewpub, our founder had the glimmer of an idea that would take root and come to fruition nearly three years later.

Freetail Original represents the culmination of that dream into liquid reality. It harkens back to those first days in 2008 when our vision for what Freetail would be was still forming--the bricks and mortar were set, but the steam in the kettle was still rising.

A big, malty American Amber led the way as our flagship beer--with a crisp, bitter hop character to balance. By design, Freetail Ale has gone through many changes at the pub, but as one of our inaugural releases at our S. Presa brewery we wanted to pay homage to the Original. Brewed with Pils, Munich, Vienna and Caramunich malts hand in hand with European and American hops, this tribute to fulfilling a dream piques our enthusiasm for another new beginning.

Freetail Brewing Co. was founded by Scott Metzger, Jason Davis and Gary Butler, as they embarked on a journey to re-invigorate the San Antonio craft brewing scene. When Freetail's original 1604 location opened on Black Friday of 2008, it was only the city's second operating brewery, and it sparked an adventure that includes wacky green beers, historic bottle releases, a monumental lobbying effort to change Texas beer laws, and eventually the construction of a 30,000 square foot production brewery just south of downtown. Today Freetail and its 51 employees are proud to have helped spark what is now a vibrant and diverse craft beer scene in San Antonio.
